farm

Spanish - granja (grahn-hah)

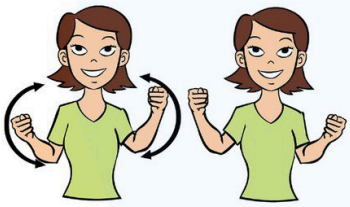

To sign farm, take your open dominant hand, and start with your thumb touching your non-dominant side. Then trace the jaw all the way around to your dominant side.

tractor

Spanish - tractor (trahk-tohr)

Tractor is signed just like truck: mimic moving a very large steering wheel.

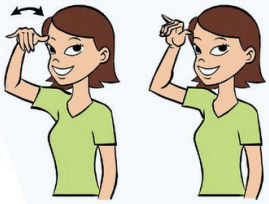

COW

Spanish - vaca (bah-kah)

To make the sign for cow, make your hand into a fist then straighten your pinkie finger and straighten your thumb. The two extended fingers on your hand should like the horns of a cow. Take your thumb and put it by the side of your head and twist your hand around.

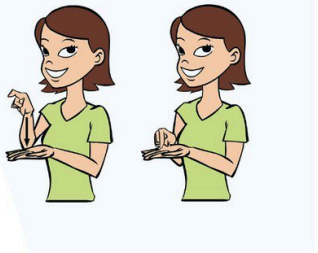

chicken

Spanish - pollo (poh-yoh)

The sign for chicken looks a lot like a beak pecking the ground or scratching for food. To sign chicken, start with the bird sign. Take your thumb and index finger and make an open beak, while making the rest of your hand into a fist. Close the beak and bring it down to peck at the ground as represented by your other outstretched hand, palm facing up.

horse

Spanish - caballo (kah-bah-yoh)

The baby sign for horse is like a horse twitching an ear to brush away a pesky fly. You start by taking your dominant hand with thumb, middle finger, and index finger extended and making an L-shape, with your other two fingers tucked in and palm facing forward. Put the thumb on your temple, and move the index finger and middle finger down and up together.

Baby Sign Language.com

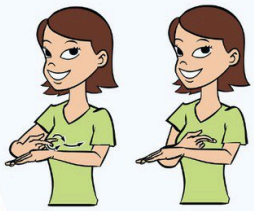

sheep

Spanish - oveja (oh-beh-hah)

The sign for sheep looks like you are shearing a sheep. You put your non-dominant hand out and across in front of your body, palm facing down, then you make your dominant hand into shears by extending your index and middle fingers out like a reclining letter 'V'.
To perform the sign, move your middle and index fingers back and forth intermittently along your non-dominant forearm, as if you were operating the shears. It's as if you're cutting the wool along the sheep's back.

Baby Sign Language.com

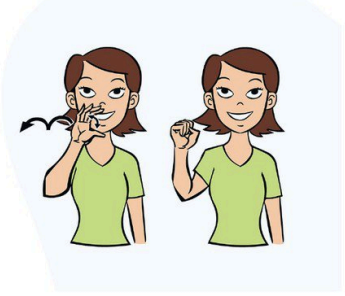

carrot

Spanish - zanahoria (sah-nah-oh-ryah)

To sign carrot, close the fist of your dominant hand with thumb outside and start it off close to your mouth, as if you are holding a carrot. Then have your fist travel from the side of your mouth to about a foot in front of you, while opening and closing the fist a couple of times. It is like doing half the sign for hotdog or baloney with only one hand, and forward from your mouth, not sideways like the two latter food signs.

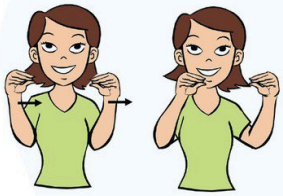

corn

Spanish - maiz (mah-ees)

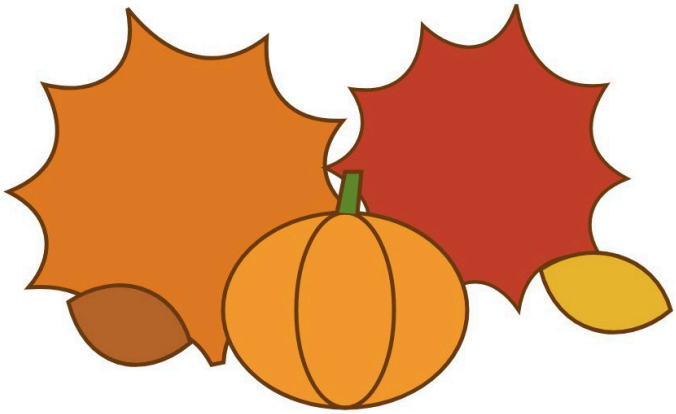

Corn in Baby Sign Language looks like you are holding a cob of corn with both open, curved hands, and munching away (sans the stream of butter dripping down your shirt). Make the sign by holding an imaginary cob of corn with both hands in front of your mouth, and nibbling along the corn with your mouth, turning your hands twice. A one-handed version (if you're carrying your baby in your other arm), is to get your pointer or index finger, hold it horizontally across your mouth, and turn it twice, again as if eating a cob of corn.

fall

Spanish – otoño (oh-TOH-nyoh)

To sign fall, hold up your non-dominant arm like a tree trunk. Brush the side of your other hand down past your elbow, like a leaf falling from the tree.

Spanish - calabaza (kah-Lah-bah-sah)

Pumpkin is signed by making your non-dominant hand into a fist and flicking it with your forefinger on your dominant hand. The sign is like you are testing the surface of pumpkin to make sure it is good.
