all done

Start with your hands open and palms facing you, then twist your wrists so your palms are facing out. Repeat this motion a few times.

 Memory tip

It's like you're brushing something away from you.

 When to use the sign

Use this sign whenever you wrap up an activity with your little one. You can ask, "Are you ALL DONE?" when you think he is done eating. Sign and say ALL DONE when you're about to take him out of the high chair, car seat, or bathtub. Before you know it, he will be letting you know when he's had enough by signing ALL DONE instead of fussing. You can also use this sign when you say "finished" or "the end."

more

Bring your fingers and thumbs together on both hands and then tap the tips of your fingers together in front of your body.

 Memory tip

It's like you're adding things together each time your fingertips touch.

 When to use the sign

MORE is often used when babies are eating: "Do you want MORE?" This causes some babies to think that MORE = FOOD, and they will start to sign MORE whenever they are hungry. To avoid this confusion, make sure to sign MORE when you are doing anything your baby enjoys, such as singing, bouncing, or even belly kisses! In time, your baby will start letting you know when she wants MORE, and not just when it comes to food.

please

Rub your flat hand in a circular motion on your chest.

 Memory tip

It's like you are rubbing your heart because you want something so much.

 When to use the sign

Teach your baby the sign for PLEASE by modeling it yourself when you want him to give you something. Or, if he wants something, you can ask him to "say PLEASE" and pause a moment before giving the desired object. Don't withhold things for long, though---you don't want to frustrate your baby.

 What to look for Babies often look like they are wiping or rubbing their chest when they sign PLEASE.

 Similar signs

thank you

Place the fingers of your flat hand on your chin, then move your hand away.

 Memory tip

It's like returning the favor when someone gives you something.

 When to use the sign

Sign THANK YOU to your baby whenever she hands you something or does something you request (like sit down). With time, she will get the idea and sign THANK YOU when you give her something!

 What to look for

Your baby might touch or tap her mouth, which could look like she's signing EAT (here).

Spanish - escuela (ehs-kweh-lah)

School is signed by clapping your flat, open hands together, with the top hand's fingers perpendicularly angled to the bottom's. Lay your non-dominant hand open, palm facing up, then bring down your dominant hand to clap the two together. It is as if you are the teacher, clapping your hands to get your students' attention.

Count the Circles!

Point to each circle and count out loud: 1, 2, 3...

Circle Hop!

Put this page on the floor and hop into the circle!

teacher

Spanish - profesor (proh-feh-sohr)

Make the teacher sign by signing teach and then person. First, sign by placing both hands on the sides of your head and closing your fingers and your thumbs a short distance away from your forehead, in close proximity to your ears. Finish the sign by holding your parallel, open palms facing each other, and bring them down from shoulder level to waist level, completing the sign for person.

friend

Spanish - amigo (ah-mee-goh)

To make the sign for friend, hold out both of your index fingers hooked in a curved or 'C'-like shape. Holding one hand with your hook index facing up, hook the second index into the first. Then reverse the position for the hands and do it again. It is like your fingers are best friends and giving each other a hug.

HOP!

circle

Spanish - circulo (seer-koo-loh)

To sign circle, start with your index finger of your non-dominant hand pointing forward in front of your body. Then take your dominant hand index finger and make a circle, starting and ending at the stationary index finger of the non-dominant hand.
